The PAL Camp Invention Summer Camp presents science and math-related material in a fun, creative structure that encourages youth to pursue the academic subjects in and out of school. Hands-on projects allow children to put the knowledge taught to use right away through group projects.

This format allows children to practice the skills they are taught and develop their communication skills so youth can interact and work with their peers in a positive and productive manner. Camp Invention also encourages teamwork, creative problem-solving and inventive thinking in youth. Using the camp structure's unique teaching method also encourages youth to actively take charge of their group experiments and use their own determination and creativity to complete the tasks presented to them.
